April 15, 2019 (Coos Bay, OR) -- Bay Point Landing, a modern camping resort stretched across more than a mile of exclusive waterfront in Lower Coos Bay, announces its cabin and Airstream rentals are available starting May 15, 2019. Bay Point Landing is the sought-after destination along the Southern Oregon Coast for adventures and private escapes. With 11 Scandinavian-inspired cabins, 13 Airstreams, 147 RV sites, and a modern clubhouse with indoor pool and other amenities, Bay Point Landing is the perfect retreat for outdoor relaxation.

The sprawling, 103-acre coastal Coos Bay property is situated on the lower bay directly next to the largest natural estuary in the United States, offering scenic views and some of the area's best kayaking, clamming and stand up paddle boarding. Modeled on an archipelago, the individual campsites are linked by numerous walking trails that buffer each camp from one another and provide immediate access to beachfront and water activities. Designed by R&A Architecture and Design, Bay Point Landing's cabins and clubhouse are inspired by the area's natural surroundings offering outdoor enthusiasts a modern respite after a day's adventure.

"Bay Point Landing blends the lush landscape of Oregon's South Coast with a glass and wooden oasis in the clubhouse and pre-fab cabins," said Christian Robert, Co-Founder and Principal of R&A. "The backdrop afforded us a palette unlike anything we've ever seen before. We've taken the pristine landscape and dotted it with campsites and beachfront terraces, mixing outdoor access, natural beauty and community space to form a sanctuary by the sea."

After a day's adventure at one of the nearby State Parks or a round of golf at Bandon Dunes, Oregon's top-ranked golf course, Bay Point Landing's inspired guest experience offers cozy cabin and Airstream interiors, whose clean and minimalist furnishings help visitors feel right at home. Those seeking relaxation can enjoy the resort's new charred-cedar and glass clubhouse with full-height windows and elevated deck, allowing for an expansive view in all directions. Anchoring the site, the clubhouse amenities include a heated saltwater indoor pool, well-being center, fire pits, and sea view terraces. Outdoor decks and terraces provide space to enjoy the natural beauty of the bay and invite shared experiences.

Coos County's beautiful protected bay, lush forests and the neighboring Pacific Ocean make it an ideal destination for road-trippers, weekenders and adventurers. Serving as the regional hub for Oregon's South Coast, visitors can expect more than just the striking landscape. People gather to the area throughout the year to enjoy the region's sight-seeing, outdoor adventures, food, and wine. Nightly rates for cabins start at $129/night and $149/night in the Airstreams. About Bay Point Landing: Founded in 2018, Bay Point Landing is the premier destination for modern camping on the Oregon Coast. Bordered by a dense forest along Oregon's South Coast, Bay Point Landing was designed as a private retreat and place to connect with the sea. Overlooking more than a mile of secluded beach front, the individual campsites were organized to recall a natural riparian past of marsh islands separated by streams flowing into Coos Bay Lagoon. Preserving the bay's natural beauty, the design clarifies the character of the 103-acre inlet site by revealing the landscape and its history. Bay Point Landing offers well-appointed Airstream and cabin accommodations, luxury RV sites, and curated amenities year-round.
